The income account of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit miscellaneous general expenses of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company $178,855 86, leaving a surplus for the year of $42,549 25. The accumulated in the shape of a dividend. I think it has adopted the wiser course of using it for the strengthening of the company's condition and financial position, and has therefore appropriated toward new equipment and construction on railroad properties $300, the Brooklyn, Queens County and Suburban Railroad Company, which were accrued prior to the acquisition of this company by the Rapid Transit Company was not responsible, $22,174 19. The result of these transactions is that the physical condition of the constituent companies is excellent, and their books are exceedingly clean.

On June 30, 1898, President Rossiter goes on to say, in the preceding fiscal years. Continuing, he says:

On June 30, 1898, President Rossiter goes on to say the Brooklyn Rapid Transit system included 266.5 of railroad (single track), and during the year preceding had shown passenger earnings of $5,491,664. 'On June 30, 1899," he continues, "the system emprised (including the Kings County Elevated Company, which has been contracted for but possession of which has not yet been given) 134 miles of single track, with over 200 miles of franchises yet unbuilt, and the combined passenger earnings for the year then ending were $11, 035.216, to which should be added $358,067, representing earnings from miscellaneous sources, making a earning capacity for the year of $11,393,273.

INCREASE OF CAPITAL

eport refers to the recent increase of the cap of the Brocklyn Rapid Transit Company from $20,000,000 to $45,000,000 for the purpose of ac quiring the roads recently taken over by it, and also the Kings County Elevated road, soon to be taken over, and for providing money for the elec-trical reconstruction and equipment of the Brook-taken over, and for providing money for the electrical reconstruction and equipment of the Brooklyn and Brighton Beach and the Prospect Park and Coney Island.

The Brooklyn Rapid Transit system, the report says, is in mileage of track the largest street railway system in the world, comprising more than twice the trackage of the Metropolitan Street Railway Company, of this borough, and skry programment of the system and the amount of passenger carnings; it appraises every other street railroad system in the world, with the exception of the Metropolitan Street Railway Company of New-York. It is the president's estimate that the system should be reduced as economics are fully established. General Greely will report | was thought justifiable in view of the financial on what Americans have done in recent years in geographical research, and Chief Moore will demenstrate the new lines of work of the meteorological service. The society has never assembled in cal service. The society has never assembled in America, and the American delegates will make a strong effort to have the next congress meet in this country, probably in Washington.

Another international gathering of some note is a convention of representatives of all meteorological services, to be held at St. Petersburg on September 2. Seventeen Governments now have these systems. Professor Moore had expected to attend, but was prevented by the pressure of official business.

One of the features of the Paris Exposition next year will be the International Horse Show, which will be opened on September 2, and last more than a week. The added money to be distributed among the prize winners is $110,000. There will be seven sections. The first section will be for thoroughbreds, pure bred Arabs and Anglo-Arabs. In Phoenix Park, Dublin, of Lord Frederick Cavendish, Chief Secretary for Ire-land, and T. H. Burke, Permanent Under Secre-tary, who were assissinated by stabbling by four men known as "Invincibles." An order of release was also signed in the case of Laurence O'Hanlon, sentenced to fenal servitude for attempting to murder members of a jury engaged in the trial of persons charged with murder, in November, 1882. Fitzharris and O'Hanlon left the jail this even-ing.

GRAND LODGE, I. O. O. F., IN SESSION.

The annual session of the Grand Lodge of the State of New-York, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, began yesterday morning in Scottish Rite Hall, W. P. Trautman, the Grand Master, presiding. Seven hundred delegates are present, and the session is expected to last three days. The Grand

NEUFELDT INDICTED.

GRAND JURY FINDS HIM RESPONSIBLE FOR MRS. KRONMAN'S DEATH.

HE HAD BEEN PREVIOUSLY HELD BEFORE THE CORONER-MRS. INNES'S POSITIVE

William Neufeldt was held by a Coroner's yesterday on the charge of killing Mrs. Annie Kronman. He was immediately taken before the Grand Jury, which to-day indicted him for murder in the first degree.

Mrs. Kronman was murdered with a hatchet on Monday, August 7, in her flat, at No. 266 West Thirty-fifth-st. Nathan Kronman was the first witness before Coroner Fitzpatrick. He told the story of his Annie Innes, the principal witness for the ople, was called after Kronman. She said she did not know of the murder until some time after

"Then." she said, "we talked it over, and spoke of the people we had seen around the house. I was subpœnaed to tell about the man I had seen. He had black hair, black clothes and a decided Hebrew nose.

"Do you see him here now?" asked Coroner Fitzpatrick.

'Yes, sir."

"That man there," said Mrs. Innes, pointing to Neufeidt, who sat near Mr. Howe and facing her.
"He's sitting at the end of the table."

Obeying Coroner Fitzpatrick's instructions, the woman descended from the witness stand and placed her hand on Neufeidt. He gazed straight shead, and he did not quiver. She said she had met Neufeldt in the vestibule of the house at No. 266 West Thirty-fifth-st., and that he asked her where the Kronmans lived. She addised him to ring their bell. She next saw him at Police Headquarters, but then he had different clothes and no mustache. Harris Baruch, the pawnbroker, of East Houston-st, with whom Mrs. Kronman's jewelry had been pawned, identified Neufeldt as the man who had pawned, identified Neufeldt as the man who had visited his shop.

Coroner Fitzpatrick in his charge to the jury said that while there was no witness that could positively swear that Neufeldt had committed the deed, the circumstances surrounding the case, Neufeldt's actions subsequent to the murder and the fact that Mrs. Kronman's property had been in his possession placed the prisoner in a grave situation.
The jury's verdet caused some amusement owing to the way in which it was worded and because it contained no reference to the cause of death. "On the evidence submitted," said the foreman, "in our belief we think Neufeldt is the guilty party." Neufeldt was then committed to the Tombs without ball to await the action of the Grand Jury and indicted on a charge of murder in the first degree. He will probably plead this morning before Judge Newburger.

degree. He will probably plead this morning befor Judge Newburger.

Mrs. Innes, the principal witness for the prosecution, is a rather good looking woman, about thirt years old. She was as positive a witness as coul be desired and told her story in extremely fewords.

THE POST CONFERENCE.

MR. MORGAN BEGINS HIS COURSE OF LECT-URES AT NORTHFIELD.

Northfield, Mass., Aug. 22 (Special).-The Post Conference opened this morning with a large Congregational Church. Rev. G. Campbell Morgan began his course of lectures upon "The Spirit of God." Mr. Morgan spoke again in the evening upon "The Table Talk of Christ at the House of Matthew."

sermon to-night:

Christ was not merely a public teacher, He was prominently a man of the house and of the home. He touched social life and went at the invitation of various people to eat at their houses. It is a noticeable fact that we have no record of His visiting the house of a priest. The gospel of Luke reveals Christ as the Son of Man, and from it we, propose to take seven studies, in which we shall see the Master at the houses of various persons and hear His table talk. Under such circumstances there fell from His lips some of His most valued teaching. These were not drawing room meetings with set addresses. Christ as guest joined in the ordinary conversation, and the light of His wisdom fell upon various matters suggested by those who were gathered around Him.

In this case, we find Him at the house of Matthew, who has made a great feast and called together a multitude of his confraternity. The Oriental house was ever open to the passing stranger, who might observe the doluge and listen to the situation. The arrests made were due to the timely dis covery of a well organized plot to overthrow the Sam administration in favor of M. Fouchard, ex-Minister of Finance, who is one of the most popular men in the republic. The conspiracy had no connection with the financial situation, beyond the incidental fact that M. Fouchard's adherents naturally think that he is the one man competent to straighten out the financial muddle into which the country has drifted. The plot was discovered on the eve of its consummation. The necessary arms were found concealed, ready for distribution, on the premises occupied by Fouchard and elsewhere in the city. Fouchard and the other leaders of the conspiracy were arrested and thrown into prison. Following is a full list of those arrested: C Fouchard, V. Donyon, Charles de Delva, Alexander Fernand, S. Denis, Pierre Frederique, Moraty Ferry, Guerin, D. J. Baptiste, Clerveau G. Noel, Louis Witty, Edmond Antoine, H. Laferriere, Anatius Azar, T. Bonhomme, Badere, jr., O. are all prominent and for the most part popular people.

American interests, however, had a most lucky escape. It is said that personally President Sam is in favor of negotiating the American loan to clear off existing obligations on the proposed condition that Hayti surrender control of the customs. This is contrary to the Constitution, and can only be done by a modification of the Constitution, to which the people will never consent unless under force. President Sam can only show his hand in this connection with his political opponents out of the way. Events have played into the President's hands very opportunely, and the best friends of the country are now said to be hoping that he will quickly and finally make up his mind to grant the concessions, which will result in restoring the republic to prosperity, ere the pride of the populace can make any effective resistance. And once it is an accomplished fact, they think, the United States will be bound to support him.

Patchogue, Long Island, Aug. 22.-That colored pupils may be excluded from schools where white children attend in this State was established to-day by a decision rendered by Justice Smith, of the Supreme Court, in the somewhat famous case of Mrs. Cisco, a wealthy colored woman, who has been attempting for several months to compel the Board of Education of Queens Borough to admit her children into the ion, saying, in part:

The Court of Appeals decides that under the provisions of the Common School act of 1864, authorizing the establishment of separate schools for the education of the colored race, the authorities have power, when, in their opinion, the interests of education will be promoted thereby, to establish schools for the exclusive use of colored children, and when such are established and provided with equal facilities, to exclude colored children from schools provided for white children.

There is no claim that the statute was ever repealed. The claim that the statute was repealed by implication cannot be seriously entertained.

The due and orderly administration of law requires that the relief demanded by the relator be denied until granted by the Legislature, or until the Court of Appeals revises or reverses its former adjudication. Motion for writ denied, without costs.

apiece wholesale, were bringing 14 cents yesterday. Spanish mackerel and butterfish are fully double their usual price, and lobsters have gone up 30 cents a dozen.

This is ascribed by the fishermen who supply the local market to the poor quality of bait they have at present, coupled with the fact that there is a vast quantity of small fish in the water just now, on which the bigger fellows gorge themselves. Smacks have been sent to Glen Cove and as far as Bridgeport and New-Haven for fresh moss bunkers with which to tempt the bluefish. It is hoped that if warm weather continues this favorite table fish will soon be taken in large numbers again.

THE POUNDS DESERTED AND DEALERS COM PELLED TO GET THEIR SUPPLY FROM NEW-YORK.

first time in a decade the fish dealers in the coast resorts are obliged to obtain their supply of fish the New-York markets. In former years these dealers secured their stock from the numerous poundnets along the short front, but the pounds have been almost barren for over a elsewhere for fish. A fish famine is threatened and the price of fish has more than doubled within fish at the pounds for 3 cents a pound. This week bluefish are selling in the New-York markets at from 9 cents to 12 cents a pound, and they are scarce at this price. Weakfish, which sold earlier in the season for $1 50 a hundredweight, now command & cents a nound, and nurch are compelled to pay for icing and freight. There is a scarcity of sea bass and of all species of sait being swept away, and they were not set again until yesterday. A few butterfish are being caught in the pound nets, but the supply is not sufficient to meet the demand. Charles White, a poundnet owner, said to-night:

"Fish are the freaklest things that exist. One season there will be millions of bluefish and weak-fish along the coast and in the bays; the next season they will keep away from their former haunts, and no one knows why. The menhaden, or mossbunkers, have not been running this summer, and their absence may account for the scarcity of bluefish, for the latter feed on the menhaden. Still, weaklish do not eat mossbunkers, and the weakfish are not running, either, so there must be some other reason for the disappearance of the food fish."
